Armen G. Kaprelian

New York, NY | U.S. Citizen | armenkaprelian@gmail.com | armenkaprelian.com

Education

Claremont Graduate University 2022 – Expected 2026
Ph.D., Economics (GPA: 3.88) Claremont, CA

- Dissertation: Opacity and Adaptation under Sanctions: Geoeconomics in the Universe of Russian Firms
- Among the first firm-level sanctions studies with universal administrative coverage of a target economy: ∼63M firm-year observations across ∼10M Russian firms (2011–2025), processed in R on AWS and Google Colab.
- Methods: population-scale logit models of statement availability with absorbed registry controls and two-way clustered inference (adjusted odds ratios by ownership, legal form, industry, size, and list membership), registry transition accounting, and 100 km equal-area geographic analysis. Planned financial analysis uses fixed-baseline resource cohorts with annual-panel PPML and OLS event-study designs, inverse-probability weighting for selective observation, and bounded missing-outcome stress tests. Planned work also includes quantile difference-in-differences and CatBoost.
- Trade projects (2024): Modeled bilateral exports with gravity regressions and LightGBM to examine a proposed 60% U.S. tariff on imports from China (CEPII, ∼1.3M panel records). Used UN Comtrade API data to track centrality in a 15-country trade network around the 2022 sanctions on Russia. Fit a TERGM of reciprocal trade ties.
- Fields: geoeconomics, political economy, international trade, sanctions and counter-sanctions

George Mason University 2018 – 2020
M.A., Economics (GPA: 3.70) Arlington, VA

Arizona State University (Honors College) 2012 – 2016
B.S., Economics (GPA: 3.89) Tempe, AZ

Experience

Ministry of Economy of the Republic of Armenia Sep 2020 – Jul 2022
Economic Research Assistant, Economic Research Center Yerevan, Armenia

- Co-authored the quarterly Armenian Economic Outlook used by Fitch Ratings to assess Armenia's sovereign rating.
- Estimated trade effects of the Turkey embargo over ∼1,000 6-digit HS-code lines (UN Comtrade, 2018–2021), identifying import substitution and 26% substitute-supplier price inflation (vs. ∼6% globally), and forecasting outcomes of removal.
- Wrote a March 2022 report assessing Armenia's exposure to sanctions on Russia through trade, remittances, and banking. Drew on the 2014–15 episode, when Armenian exports to Russia fell 38%.
- Estimated Armenia's incremental capital-output ratio (∼2.3) and a ∼$1B national capital-investment gap benchmarked against 11 peer economies, informing policymaker guidance.
- Modeled the fiscal effects of a proposed 6% payroll-tax health-insurance mandate via domestic consumption functions and shadow-economy dynamics, projecting an annual budget cost near 4% of GDP.

Center for International Private Enterprise (CIPE) Sep 2019 – Dec 2019
Research Intern, Eastern Europe & Eurasia Department Washington, DC

- Authored a report on anti-corruption regulation and its impact on SME capital access across 10 Eurasian nations.
- Presented senior staff and the Executive Director with a plan to add climate solutions to CIPE's consulting work.

Armenian Assembly of America Jun 2019 – Aug 2019
Research Intern, Office of the Nagorno-Karabakh Republic Washington, DC

- Analyzed renewable energy and banking for investors and harmonized regional economic and financial data.

Teaching

Teaching Assistant, Econometrics with Linear Algebra (R, Python), Pomona College Jan 2025 – May 2025
Teaching Assistant, Econometrics II: Causal Inference (R, Stata), Claremont Graduate University Aug 2024 – Dec 2024

Skills & Languages

Programming	R, Python, Stata, SQL, LaTeX
Computing	Linux, AWS, Google Colab; DuckDB and Parquet; Git and GitHub
Software	Microsoft Excel, PowerPoint, Word
Languages	English (native), Armenian (conversational)

Fellowships

- Economics Fellowship, Claremont Graduate University, 2022–present.
- H. Hovnanian Family Foundation Public Service Fellowship, 2021: continued government service after iGorts.
- iGorts Fellowship, 2020: selected to serve in the Armenian government.