Education

Claremont Graduate University 2022 – Expected 2026
Ph.D., Economics (GPA: 3.88) Claremont, CA

- Dissertation: Opacity and Adaptation under Sanctions: Geoeconomics in the Universe of Russian Firms
- Among the first firm-level sanctions studies with universal administrative coverage of a target economy: ∼63M firm-years across ∼10M Russian firms (2011–2025), processed in R on AWS and Google Colab. Financial statements include balance sheets, profit and loss statements, cash flow statements, and statements of changes in equity.
- Methods: Logit models of statement availability with industry, region, legal-form, ownership, and year FE. Industry/region SE clustering. Registry transition accounting and 100 km equal-area maps. Event-study design: PPML for real revenue and OLS for operating margin in fixed baseline cohorts, with firm, industry-year, and region-year FE. IPW for selective observation, bounded missing-outcome stress tests, quantile DiD, and CatBoost.
- Trade projects (2024): Assessed how a proposed 60% U.S. tariff on Chinese imports might affect bilateral exports using gravity regressions and LightGBM (∼1.3M CEPII panel observations). Queried UN Comtrade's API for bilateral imports to track centrality in a 15-country network around the 2022 sanctions on Russia. Modeled reciprocal ties (TERGM).
- Fields: geoeconomics, political economy, international trade, sanctions and counter-sanctions

Economic Research Assistant, Economic Research Center Yerevan, Armenia

- Tracked shifts to other foreign suppliers under Armenia's embargo on Turkish goods (∼1,000 six-digit HS categories, UN Comtrade, 2018–2021) and forecast monthly imports from Turkey using seasonal ARIMA. Prices for covered imports from outside Turkey rose 26% from 2020 to 2021, versus ∼6% for the same basket across six trading partners.
- Wrote a March 2022 report assessing Armenia's exposure to sanctions on Russia through trade, remittances, and banking. Drew on the 2014–15 episode, when Armenian exports to Russia fell 38%.
- Estimated Armenia's incremental capital-output ratio (∼2.3) and a ∼$1B national capital-investment gap benchmarked against 11 peer economies, informing policymaker guidance.
- Modeled the fiscal effects of a proposed 6% payroll-tax health-insurance mandate via domestic consumption functions and shadow-economy dynamics, projecting an annual budget cost near 4% of GDP.
